By Mr. BYRD (for Mr. BENTSEN):
S. 676. A bill to establish the title of States in certain resources; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

ABANDONED SHIPWRECK ACT

● Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. President, today I introduce the "Abandoned Shipwreck Act of 1985." The purpose of the legislation is to clear up ambiguities resulting from conflicting Federal court decisions on the ownership of abandoned historic shipwrecks in State waters. The bill resolves these differences by granting States title to and management authority over certain abandoned shipwrecks on submerged State lands.

The last Congress collected information on this issue and discussed alternative legislative proposals with a broad range of interested groups. These include sport divers who, in general, want to maintain their right to dive on and explore sunken wrecks; the States, which seek legislation to clarify their ownership and control of wrecks within their waters; marine archaeologists, who seek legislation that would ensure proper excavation of these sunken wrecks; and professional treasure salvors, who want to preserve their rights to explore for and excavate historic wrecks that may be commercially valuable.

Under the term of the bill, States will have title to those abandoned shipwrecks that are substantially buried, in coral formation, protected by the State or listed on the National Register of Historic Places, and that lie on submerged State lands. In addition, the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation is directed to consult with public and private interest—including archaeologists, salvors, sport divers, and State historic preservation officers—to develop advisory shipwreck management guidelines for the States. These guidelines allow for recreational exploration of shipwreck sites that is noninjurious to the shipwreck or the environment surrounding the site.

I ask unanimous consent the text of the bill be printed at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 676

Such guidelines shall assist States and the United States Government in developing legislation and regulations to carry out their responsibilities under this Act in such manner as will allow for—

(1) recreational exploration of shipwreck sites, and

(2) private sector recovery of shipwrecks, which is not injurious to the shipwreck or the environment surrounding the site.●

S. 677. A bill to prohibit the importation of certain products of Australia and New Zealand; to the Committee on Finance.

PROHIBITING THE IMPORTATION OF CERTAIN PRODUCTS FROM AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND

● Mr. WALLOP. Mr. President, today I, along with Senators DOMENICI, PRESSLER, ABDNOR, and SYMMS introduce legislation which would bar the importation to the United States of certain products from New Zealand and Australia, in response to the two countries' recent violations of certain provisions of the ANZUS Pact Agreement.

The prohibition of port calls by U.S. naval ships made by the Government of New Zealand, and the Australian Government's refusal to allow the use of its bases by U.S. aircraft in monitoring strategic missile tests are irresponsible denials of obligations taken on by the two countries when they signed the Mutual Defense Treaty with the United States in 1951. The United States has taken on the lion's share of the financial burden for maintaining the free world's strategic counterbalance to the Soviet Union's nuclear missile force. Whether our ANZUS allies find it unpleasant or not, the fact is that nuclear weapons are, and will remain for at least the next decade and probably beyond, the major component of strategic forces. To deny access to U.S. ships carrying nuclear weapons while enjoying the freedom that these weapons bring them is not only grossly unfair, but, to be sure, in true "Alice in Wonderland" fashion, these actions jeopardize the citizens of New Zealand and Australia as well as those of the United States.

We have always considered the ANZUS nations to be our allies and their people to be our friends. As a country's citizens are finally responsible for the course taken by its government, we are dismayed that those whom we consider friends would promulgate policies which show such blatant disregard for the principles upon which that friendship is based.

Heretofore the United States has allowed the products of New Zealand and Australia to compete in our markets even though doing so caused real hardship to our domestic woolgrowing and uranium industries, and we did so in the name of friendship. It is ironic that these Socialist governments which are working so hard to malign the use of nuclear power and weapons derive generous revenues from the sale of nuclear uranium which power them. Their double standard of morality, which they are currently attempting to impose on the United States is intolerable.

This bill is meant to bring home to the people of New Zealand and Australia the seriousness of the recent actions of their governments. The relations between the United States and its ANZUS allies must be reciprocal, and the agreement which created the alliance must be adhered to by all parties. Make no mistake this bill is meant to succeed.●

S. 678. A bill to amend the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 to authorize multiyear contracts in certain cases; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. President, today I am reintroducing the Civilian Agency Multiyear Contracting Act of 1985, which authorizes civilian procuring agencies to enter into multiyear contracts, not to exceed 5 years, when it is determined to be in the Government's best interest. This legislation is identical to a bill I sponsored last Congress, S. 2300, that was passed unanimously by the Senate on May 23, 1984. I am pleased to have Senators LEVIN and DANFORTH as cosponsors.

The genesis of this legislation, like most of the Governmental Affairs Oversight Subcommittee's previous procurement reform proposals, dates back to the Commission on Government Procurement. In 1972, the Commission reported to Congress that the advantages of multiyear contracting exceed the disadvantages and recommended that such method should be used, when appropriate, on a Governmentwide basis. The General Accounting Office agreed in a 1978 report, entitled "Federal Agencies Should Be Given Multiyear Contracting Authority for Supplies and Services," recommending that legislation should be enacted, with appropriate safeguards, to provide such authority. The Office of Federal Procurement Policy also endorsed the concept of Governmentwide multiyear contracting in its February 1982 proposal for a uniform Federal procurement system, as did the Grace Commission in its June 1983 report on procurement.

Under present law, multiyear contracting may be used only when no-year or multiyear funds are available or, in the case of 1-year funds, when multiyear contracting is specifically authorized by statute. The Defense Department has such statutory contract authority and has used it effectively. Civilian procuring agencies,

Support for this project is strong. Already, many of the farmers and small-town people have signed up for these projects, 80 percent in the Lyman-Jones area, for example. Under this legislation, project participants would receive water delivered by pipeline from the Missouri River, where the supplies are virtually inexhaustible and the potential for development benefiting the people of South Dakota is tremendous.

Mr. President, I urge my Senate colleagues to recognize the inadequate and unsafe water supply in the western region of South Dakota and support this legislation. ●

By Mr. GRASSLEY:

S. 1473. A bill to amend title II of the Social Security Act to remove the restriction that only earnings before the year of attainment of age 62 may be used in the transitional provision (commonly referred to as the "notch" provision) relating to individuals born between 1917 and 1921; to the Committee on Finance.

SOCIAL SECURITY "NOTCH" PROBLEM

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation that will address the so-called Social Security notch problem. As my colleagues are well aware, the notch problem was created in 1977 when the Congress realized that Social Security benefits were rising to unintended levels due to a flaw in the benefit formula which overcompensated for inflation. Under the automatic benefit increase provision enacted in 1972, benefits for many individuals would have risen higher than their actual earnings before retirement. Recognizing that this unintended windfall in benefits would present a long-term problem that could jeopardize the very solvency of the Social Security trust fund, Congress substantially changed the way that Social Security benefits would be computed after 1978 in Public Law 95-216.

However, to protect benefits of people already receiving or about to receive Social Security, Congress provided a special method of computation to those persons reaching retirement age in the first several years after the new rules went into effect. These special rules were to prevent persons who would not have much time to adjust their retirement plans based on the prior law from being affected too adversely by the new law.

Individuals becoming eligible for retirement benefits by reaching age 62 in 1979-83 were allowed to compute their benefits under the new rules or under the old rules with some limitations, whichever would result in higher benefits. The modified old law formula is called the transitional guarantee and is available to all individuals born from 1917 through 1921. Had the persons born in this period not received this transitional guarantee, their benefits computed under the new rules would have been much lower, in many instances.

Despite efforts to provide equity for those born from 1917-21, many "notch babies" find that their benefits are substantially lower than persons with identical work histories that were born in 1916 and earlier. In some cases, benefits for "notch babies" may be as much as $150 less than a prenotch pension, although the average difference is much lower.

Although I support the change made by Congress in 1977 to bring future benefits in line with the ability of the system to pay for them, I am concerned with the significant disparity that exists between benefits for prenotch retirees and the "notch babies." Therefore, I am introducing legislation that will help mitigate that disparity.

The measure I am introducing will allow the computation of earnings after 61 when determining benefits under the transitional guarantee method, which will result in higher benefits for notch retirees. Ordinarily, under both the old law and the new law, earnings after age 61 may be taken into account in computing a Social Security benefit. However, several limitations were imposed in the transitional guarantee including the disallowance of earnings after age 61 in the computation of benefits. My bill would remove that restriction. All earnings back to 1979 would be included, with the revised computation effective January 1985.

I feel that this is the fairest, most realistic approach that would equalize the treatment of earnings after age 61 in the transitional guarantee, with the treatment of those earnings in both the old and the new law. This measure is also a much more responsible approach than some of the more familiar bills, such as H.R. 1917. Although this notch bill has drawn the interest and support of many notch groups, it stands little chance of congressional action because of its tremendous cost of $92.6 billion through 1990. Not only would this bill jeopardize the short-term financial stability of the Social Security Program, but it would also require a substantial increase in the tax rate paid by all workers covered under the program.

Although the scope of my bill is more moderate, it would remove the most unfair aspect of the computation of benefits for those individuals born from 1917-21. Yet, it would do so in a fiscally responsible manner that will not not jeopardize the solvency of the Social Security system that millions of our elderly depend upon. Although I have not received Congressional Budget Office revenue estimates, actuarial studies from the Social Security Administration indicate this proposal would require additional Social Security payments of $11.8 billion.

I do want to emphasize the necessity of congressional action in 1977 to eliminate the unintended benefits that occurred during years of high inflation in the early 1970's. Due to the 1972 benefit formula that overcompensated for inflation, the average replacement rate of retirement benefits to wages had risen from 30 percent in 1970 to an average of 54 percent in 1981. The 1977 law has ensured that the average replacement rate of 45 percent will be provided for all postnotch retirees.

However, we must also insist that senior citizens are not unfairly penalized in the transition from the old overindexed formula to the new formula. My bill provides for a more fair transition. I urge my colleagues to join me in seeking an appropriate legislative solution to this problem.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD as follows.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD as follows:

"Concerto in F," "An American in Paris," and "Three Preludes"—need I say more. George's influence has been so pervasive that it left its mark on the following three films made after his death: "An American in Paris" (1951), "Funny Face" (1957), and "Manhattan" (1979). The remarkable creations of George Gershwin bring George and his works melodiously to mind when we least expect it.

Ira is no less a presence in American music. Ira Gershwin composed some of the greatest lyrics known to all ages. This immortal lyricist wrote such songs as "Summertime" with George; with other musicians he did "The Man That Got Away" and "Long Ago and Far Away." He also did the Broadway musicals "Lady in the Dark" and "A Star Is Born."

But there was never such harmony and feeling as when the two brothers created together. While colleagues, Ira and George wrote the Broadway musicals "Oh Kay!," "Strike Up the Band," "Funny Face," "Girl Crazy," and "Of Thee I Sing." This last one was the first musical comedy to receive a Pulitzer Prize and displayed the virtuoso talent of these gentlemen as musicians, writers, and folk philosophers.

However, there is one musical form which challenges even the most talented composers: opera. America has produced little to succeed internationally in this field, and the 20th century has been sorely lacking as well. In a world of Wagner and Bizet, George and Ira Gershwin, in perhaps their crowning achievement, have placed America on the opera stages of the world, and they have done so in such a common poetic fashion as to capture the hearts of divas and the everyday worker as well. I speak of "Porgy and Bess" of course. This masterpiece is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year, and we salute it and the two Americans who made it possible.

I ask my colleagues to join me as cosponsors of this fine tribute to the living memory of Ira and George Gershwin.

I also ask unanimous consent that my joint resolution be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the joint resolution was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
